Strength in Numbers: A National Monthly Case Conference Series for Fellows

Ellen S. Danto-Nocton, MD,<sup>1*</sup> Deborah Simpson, PhD,<sup>2,3</sup> Marc Rasansky, MD,<sup>4#</sup>
Lindsay C. Pascarella, MBA,<sup>5</sup> and Michael L. Malone, MD<sup>3,6**</sup>

Small fellowship programs face challenges in providing learners with sufficiently diverse experiences and patient populations. The Fellows Most Difficult Case Conference is designed to broaden geriatric medicine fellows' exposure to cases and to faculty and fellows from around the country through a monthly telephone conference. We describe this innovative approach to a national monthly complex case conference that fellows from almost one-third of geriatrics fellowship programs attend, including its value to geriatric fellows and faculty and administrative costs.

fellows to explore complex cases and variations in regional perspectives and to connect with additional colleagues. J Am Geriatr Soc 66:1404-1408, 2018.

ACGME Response to Pandemic Crisis

The ACGME understands the challenges and uncertainties faced by the graduate medical education community (GME) amidst the COVID-19 (SARS-CoV-2) pandemic, and remains committed to supporting the health and well-being of residents, staff, faculty members, and the patients they serve.

As the situation evolves, the ACGME will continue to monitor the needs of the GME community and provide appropriate guidance, clarification, and resources in this section.

Accreditation Status and GME during the COVID-19 Pandemic >

Find out what to expect in the three stages of operation for graduate medical education (GME) during the COVID-19 pandemic, including the form for Sponsoring Institutions that need to declare Pandemic Emergency Status.

ACGME Guidance Statements >

Review guidance from the ACGME on accreditation priorities: resident, fellow, faculty member, and patient safety; program and staff well-being. These are updated as they are developed.

Frequently Asked Questions >

Review FAQs from the GME community. These are updated regularly.

Letters to the Community >

Read letters to the GME community from ACGME President and CEO Thomas J. Nasca, MD.

Resources for Sponsoring Institutions >

Resources for designated institutional officials, including a Sponsoring Institution Idea Exchange, are available in Learn at ACGME.

Specialty Letters to the Communities >

Read letters addressing specialty-specific concerns from the Review Committees and ACGME Review Committee staff members.

Well-Being Resources >

The ACGME has convened a task force to advance the national well-being conversation within the GME community.
